

A Platform for Paint Festivals & the Artists Who Make Them.

One platform. Artist profiles. Festival maps. Applications. Community.

WHAT IS THIS?

A home built specifically for the world of paint festivals — not a generic events tool, not a portfolio site. Something that understands how festivals, public art, and working artists actually operate.

For Artists

A professional profile, a branded QR code for their wall, and a single place to apply to festivals. Almost free to join. Built to help them get work.

For Organisers

Festival pages, application management, interactive maps, and communication tools — all in one place. Pay when you go live, not before.

For Visitors

A beautiful, simple app. Open it at a festival, find the map, navigate to artists, scan QR codes. No account needed. Zero friction.

Their professional home on the internet. Set up in minutes, valuable for years.

- A profile page — bio, portfolio images, social links — that looks great on any screen.
 - A branded QR code, ready to print and put on their wall at any festival.
 - Apply to festivals directly through the platform. Profile info pre-fills the form.
 - Festival history builds over time, showing organisers they are reliable and established.
 - Pro members get application analytics, priority visibility, and full festival history.
 - Weekly featured artist blog — curated by our team, one artist per week. Being chosen is a big deal.

Artist Membership — £10 / year · Pro — £35 / year

Free is generous. Pro is worth it.

FOR FESTIVAL ORGANISERS

Everything needed to run a festival, in one place. Less email. Less chaos. More art.

- Create a festival page — pay a small one-off fee to set up, manage applications, and build your map before launch.
 - Custom application forms. Artists apply through the platform. Review, accept, waitlist, or decline — all in one dashboard.
 - Interactive festival map. Place accepted artists as pins. Visitors navigate directly to them via Google Maps, Apple Maps, or What3Words.
 - Go live when you're ready. Monthly subscription starts the day your festival page goes public.
 - Post-festival, the page becomes a permanent archive. Mark murals as still there, removed, or unknown — making public art discoverable for years.
 - Bring in previous years of your festival as retrospective pages. Instant credibility for new joiners.

Setup fee ~£35 · Live from £19–£99 / month · Enterprise from £1,500 / year

Pricing never increases for returning organisers. Enterprise covers unlimited festivals worldwide.

THE PUBLIC APP

Simple, fast, beautiful. For anyone at a festival or anyone who loves public art.

- Live festival map. Artist pins on a real geographic map. Tap a pin — see the artist, navigate to them.
 - QR code at every wall links directly to that artist's profile. Scan and discover in seconds.
 - Navigate out to Google Maps, Apple Maps, or What3Words — whichever the visitor prefers.
 - Coming soon listings for upcoming festivals, with links to previous years for context.
 - Archived festival maps stay live. Permanent murals remain discoverable long after the event.
 - Weekly featured artist blog. A reason to open the app every week, not just at festivals.
 - Community boards. Artists talking to each other and to the public.

No account needed to use the app. A visitor at a festival should go from "what's this QR code?" to reading an artist's bio in under ten seconds.

Not just a directory. A living, breathing community for people who care about paint.

The Featured Artist Blog

- One artist. One post. Every week. Curated and approached by our team — not open submission.
 - Being featured is an accolade. It incentivises artists to keep profiles sharp and portfolios current.
 - Posts live permanently in the archive — a growing record of the paint festival world.
 - The most-read thing written about that artist's work. Genuinely valuable exposure.

Communication & Chat

- Festival channels — a private group chat created automatically when a festival goes live. Organisers message all accepted artists at once.
- Community boards — open discussion for artists across the platform. Technique, festivals, advice.
- Built on embedded infrastructure. Feels like our product, engineered by experts.

PRICING AT A GLANCE

Fair, flat, and transparent. Pricing never increases for existing customers.

Artist Membership

£10 / year or £2 / month

Profile, QR code, festival applications.

Artist Pro

£35 / year or £4 / month

Analytics, full history, priority visibility.

Organiser Setup

~£35 one-off per festival

Build forms, manage applications, configure map. Event listed as Coming Soon publicly.

Organiser Live

£19 – £99 / month

Full public festival page, map live, archive included. Size-dependent.

Enterprise

From £1,500 / year

Unlimited festivals. Global organisations. White-glove onboarding.

There is no platform built for this world. Generic event tools miss the artist. Portfolio sites miss the festival. This sits exactly at the intersection.

The QR code at the wall

Every festival that uses the platform becomes a marketing event for it. Every scan is a new visitor. Every new visitor might become an artist member or a returning festival-goer.

The archive is the product

Permanent murals don't disappear when a festival ends. The map stays live. The art stays discoverable. Over time the platform becomes the definitive record of public paint art.

Built for the mission

The pricing, the features, the blog — everything is oriented around one thing: helping artists get work and get found. That clarity of purpose is rare and it shows.

The flywheel

More artists attract more organisers. More festivals attract more visitors. More visitors attract more artists. The QR code is the spark that keeps it turning.

WHAT COMES NEXT

The idea is clear. The model is sound. Now we make it real.

01 Brand & Identity

Name, visual identity, the branded QR code. The product needs to look like something before it is something.

02 Core Build

Artist profile. Festival map. QR code. These three things, done perfectly, are the entire pilot.

03 Pilot Festival

One real organiser. One real festival. QR codes on real walls. Everything else is just planning until this happens.
